

CROSSROADS Janguage Studio's Newsletter December, 2020

The Nature of Japan

- tanuki

The Japanese Tanuki are members of the dog family. Their name translates in English as "racoon dog," on account of their close resemblance to racoons, although the two animals are not at all related.

Unlike their dog cousins, Tanukis are nocturnal animals, poor runners, but excellent swimmers and can climb trees in search of food. Rather than actively pursuing their pray, they resign themselves to a more scavenging and foraging lifestyle. Our furry friends can eat just about anything and everything, from poisonous frogs to slugs to berries, and all manner of forest morsels. They also hibernate in winter.

Because of their stocky non-athletic disposition, when attacked, they resort to playing dead, until the attacker – hopefully – resigns.

The Tanuki are very well adapted to living in the vicinity of human settlements. They can thrive on a cat or dog food diet and anything they can find in people's gardens. The absence of natural predators in urban areas often leads to overpopulation, and in turn, culls have to be carried out.

The Tanuki are the most popular animals in Japanese folklore. Initially portrayed as evil tricksters, capable of possessing people with their belly-drumming and bringing misfortune, they evolved into an altogether different symbol. An equivalent of European garden gnome, Tanuki is now a harmless and fun-loving creature, fond of drinking and merry-making, encouraging generosity. Many people adorn their gardens with Tanuki statues, hoping it will bring them prosperity and business success.

Article by Marek

Net News

NET LESSONS: Too busy to come to CROSSROADS?

.... Try our lessons on the net!

For extensive information about Tanukis in folklore and art, head to:

www.onmarkproductions.com/html/tanuki.shtml

Some Thoughts for the Month

Joshua Says: Reading! Reading regularly in your second language (English), even for short lengths of time, gives a huge boost to your ability to improve your second language communication skills. But you should approach this task not from the point of "study", but from the point of view of enjoyment. Read about the things that interest or entertain you, read for joy and you'll be surprised just how much this will improve your all-round ability to communicate.

Junko Says: It's the end of the year and we're doing some "house cleaning." We have quite a few English textbooks that we will not be using. They are new in the sense that they have never been opened. Instead of throwing them away, we'd like to offer them free to our students. You'll find them near the large classroom. Just take home as many as you want—no charge!

Marek Says: It's December and I see a variety of flowers still in bloom. Morning Glory, Cosmos and Dahlias are a real pleasure to see growing in parks and along the rivers. Flowers always manage to uplift my mood during colder months of the year. Scottish landscapes are mostly devoid of flowering plants throughout autumn and winter, so to see flowers almost all year round makes the cold and short days a lot more tolerable.

Mandcy dit: Chers étudiants, j'ai été ravie de passer cette année encore avec vous. On peux dire que cette année a été pleine de rebondissements!! Mais, Je suis très contente que nous soyons en bonne santé et que la vie continue. Je vous souhaite à tous un Joyeux Noël et une bonne année!! Mes meilleurs vœux. L'année prochaine sera belle et grandiose. Adieu Monsieur Corona et au revoir Monsieur Trump. Et Bonjour les Jeux Olympiques!

Critic's corner with S(a)3's Taro:

To Have and Have Not

"You know how to whistle, don't you? You just put your lips together and...blow."

Humphrey Bogart is a great American actor. Which of his movies do you like best, Casablanca, The Maltese Falcon, The Big Sleep or The African Queen...? Without doubt, they are all truly fantastic. However, you shouldn't overlook To

Have and Have Not. It was the first film in which Bogart and his future wife, Lauren Bacall played in together.

The film was set in the French colony of Martinique, an island in the Caribbean Sea. At that time (1944), the island was controlled by Vichy France, an ally of Nazi Germany. Harry Morgan (Bogart) was a captain of a small fishing boat. One day, the French Resistance asked him to help transport members of their group to the island in his boat. They offered him a lot of money. But, Harry refused their request. He was politically neutral and he didn't want to get involved.

That night Harry met a young American lady, Marie Browning (amazingly, Bacall, who played Marie, was only 19 years old at the time!), nicknamed Slim. Harry saw her picking someone's pocket. He knew she was a wanderer. She wanted to go back to America, but she was penniless.

Then, there was a gunfight between the local police and the Resistance. Harry and Slim were innocent, but they were taken to the police station for questioning. Because the policemen treated Slim rudely, Harry became incensed. The Vichy inspector decided that Harry was untrustworthy and seized his money and passport.

Of course, he couldn't let the arrogant police get away with that, so the next day Harry decided to help the Resistance. Above all, he wanted to earn money to buy an airplane ticket for Slim. He understood she was eager to go home. When she found out why he had changed his mind, she hugged and kissed him. Instead of simply thanking him, she said the famous line above.

Before he engaged in his dangerous mission, Harry met Slim and gave her a ticket and said good-bye. During the adventure, Harry's boat was seen and fired upon by a navy patrol. His passenger was wounded, but they escaped and got back to the island. On returning to the hotel, Harry found Slim waiting for him. She didn't use the ticket and decided to stay with him.

If you watch this timeless masterpiece for the first time, I'm convinced you will enjoy it very much. Furthermore, I'm also convinced that you will get the urge to whistle after watching it.

R Ε Н ICONS Α Α CRITTER С Ε DUEL С Т С L A P Ρ S Н В T A D A P T VENOMOUS PEBBLES R 0 U R R NOCTURNAL REAR S W SIFT

Last Month's Puzzle Solution

ACROSS

- 6 people or things that are very well-known
- 7 another name for creature
- 9 to fight
- 10 using the tongue to drink
- 11 make suitable for
- 12 very poisonous
- 14 small round stones
- 14 small round ste 17 active at night
- 18 back or behind
- 19 to sort and separate carefully

DOWN

- 1 characteristic features
- 2 odd or unusual
- 3 nerve endings that respond to stimulation
- 4 emerge from an egg
- 5 supporting growth and development
- 8 feeding on animal life
- 13 mud, clay, small stones in a river or lake
- 14 small openings in the skin
- 15 to dig
- 16 located at or near the back

Don't forget... Our SPECIAL 1+1 Campaign offer! Up to 50% off!!

See our notice board, or ask Junko in our office, for the details.