

CrossTalk

CROSSROADS Language Studio's Newsletter April, 2023

Non-verbal Communication

At a quantum level we are energy. At a fundamental level we are all built of the same stuff - atoms. Therefore, we are cut from the same cloth, so it is possible for us to communicate with each other and with different life forms.

The brain processes thoughts through electrical pulses, and these have a frequency that reverberates across space. These frequencies can be tuned into by any other being or entity. Consider as an example our pet cats or dogs who sense when we feel sad and come to us, to offer some comfort, or treat us a little differently than usual. The problem is that we suppress the notion of non-verbal communication and instead focus on spoken messages and language, but the animals around us are constantly sensing us and know things automatically. Einstein's quantum theory and relativity explain how this energy transference comes about, and it's not just coincidental that we use the expression "to be on the same wavelength" as another person.

The loss of communication with animals and plants came about with the advent of farming and livestock rearing, around 12,000 years ago. We began to see nature as a resource, there to feed us and be solely at our disposal, without much consideration for other creatures living around us. We lost the ability to have a relationship with nature and to respect it, like we used to. Some indigenous tribes, however, still continue to honour animals and living beings through different rituals, paying respect to them and showing gratitude. Modern society largely dismisses such traditions.

Our children are naturally capable of connecting with animals, as they are free of many thoughts, ideas and expectations from the world. And the animals naturally and instinctively tune in to them.

Animals feel compassion just as we do, and we have all heard of examples of interspecies relationships, where drastically different animals form a strong bond with each other. Take for example zoo keepers and orangutans or orphaned tigers being adopted by domesticated animals, such as dogs, as their kin. They cannot communicate using oral language, but at an energetic and telepathic level, they understand each other perfectly. The feelings of fear, uncertainty, curiosity, acceptance etc. are very well understood in the animal kingdom. We study these interactions between animals themselves and between them and us, and our findings point to a basic premise of communication on an energetic level, very often without vocalising the intentions.

The non-verbal communication transcends species, and even in today's world there are people who possess and express strong abilities to communicate with other sentient life through thought projection. It's quantifiable, verifiable and, with practice, an accessible form of communication, which we are all able to reconnect with. We, too, are animals, after all.

Article by Marek

Net News

NET LESSONS: Too busy to come to CROSSROADS?

.... Try our lessons on the net!

For more details, please visit:

<https://www.mysticmag.com/psychic-reading/interview->

Some Thoughts for the Month

Joshua Says: In this space in February, I reflected on the notion, lead by science that, with the aid of advanced software, people will soon be able to actually talk with animals. If that wasn't mind-boggling enough, I recently found another article suggesting that plants can also talk! Some scientists wired up some plants, put them under stress and "listened" into their cries for help! This suggests that the world we live in is truly a sentient environment full of feelings and awareness.

Junko Says: Since the Japanese Government decided to down-grade the Corona virus to the Class 5 category, related restrictions have been lifted. And, as this has increased the flow of overseas tourists to Japan, many Japanese people are also going out to visit other countries on business as well as for private reasons. And yes, there are a few of our students who are graduating from Crossroads and flying from the (Japanese) nest for more experiences abroad in the next few months. We wish them all the best of fortune

Marek Says: One of my cats, has a wide array of vocalisations and body gestures. For example, if I happen to be sitting and she wants me to clean her toilet, she raises her right paw and touches my back. If I'm standing, she meows and runs in the direction of a toilet for a short distance, then looks back at me. She never uses these "messages" for any other situations, so as not to confuse me. Cute and clever!

Mandey dit: "Mais pourquoi les français aiment-ils tant Manifester? Hé bien, la manifestation fait partie de la culture française. Et surtout, de son histoire, la première grande manifestation était la Révolution française. Ils pensent que si on se regroupe, on peut changer la vie, les lois et le gouvernement. Aussi, maintenant, il y a l'inflation et la vie est très très très chère. Alors, la vie quotidienne est difficile. De plus, les français aiment la retraite. En France, les personnes âgées ont une vie joyeuse, ils se promènent, ils boivent du vin et s'occupent des petits enfants. La retraite est sacrée !! Et enfin, peut-être qu'ils n'aiment pas beaucoup le travail !! Le mot "travail" signifie en latin "torture", dans la religion catholique, le monde des vivants est une vie de travail difficile en attendant le paradis !!! Personnellement, j'adore mon travail. Alors, je voudrais encore travailler longtemps avec mes étudiants. Mon paradis est ici ! A bientôt !!!!"

ACROSS

- 3 communicate without words or signals
- 5 repetition of a sound
- 6 basic, essential
- 9 vague idea
- 12 having ability
- 13 make use of
- 16 rhythmic contractions and expansions
- 17 by feeling, not conscious thought
- 19 something having a distinct existence
- 20 native (people)

DOWN

- 1 help growing up
- 2 start of something momentous
- 4 accidental
- 7 aware without conscious control
- 8 greater or better than the standard
- 10 movement from one position to another
- 11 blocks from consideration
- 14 statement believed to be true
- 15 having consciousness and feelings
- 18 related by blood or marriage (print version here)

Play A Game!

Find the answers on P1

Prepositions!! Select the correct or most appropriate prepositions as you read the passage below. Circle the correct answer(s) in each set of choices. In some cases, more than one is correct.

Janet works in at on Wall Street in at on the Financial District of to in Lower Manhattan on in at New York City. She has been working for from of the same company since for by 2019 and she was going to at for work every day through in on the subway. The journey took for off about an hour both ways and from at by the end of each day she was always stressed out and very tired when she got home.

But of during until the Corona pandemic, she began working in from before home. At by during first, she was excited with the idea of being able to for with work at into through home, but soon she began near under to get bored and lonely and started from to for miss her colleagues near at from work.

As the pandemic dragged onto on until, she became more and more depressed and her work suffered as a result. She found it hard to for within concentrate for at on the tasks her boss was setting her and she very often fell asleep at on during her computer while trying until to into complete her work.

After Within With three years of on during working from to at home like this, she began at to in think she had completely lost lost all of off with her social contacts. But then her company called and said Corona was no longer a threat and they wanted her with to from start coming into at to the office to for from work. It was the best news she had had in for on three years!

Last Month's puzzle Solution

ACROSS

- 2 suitable, correct
- 3 relating to the countryside
- 5 continued without stopping
- 8 almost not or nothing
- 9 ahead in time
- 11 not much chance of being or occurring
- 13 set a course of action
- 15 forbid
- 16 a humorous play on words
- 17 with no delay
- 18 creative, imaginative
- 19 ended weakly (2 words)

DOWN

- 1 a distinctive period in time
- 2 attached to
- 4 successfully completed
- 6 innovative, inventive, creative
- 7 add a burden or impose a task
- 10 all but 100% real
- 12 strange, weird, unconventional
- 14 noticed

Don't forget... Our SPECIAL 1+1 Campaign offer! Up to 50% off!!

See our notice board, or ask Junko in our office, for the details.